3. The Unique Characteristics of Social Organizations in Yunnan

At present, the social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region also confront with some special difficulties during their development. Of course these social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region have their own unique characteristics which are different from other social organizations in southeastern areas of China.

3.1. The special background for the cultivation and development of social organizations

During the development of the social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region, the independent social forces and economic and cultural environment also played a significant role in the local region. Due to the differences between regions with different economic foundation, economic system, development pattern and ethnic culture, the social organizations also confront with different economic and social environment. The objective environment results in a series of difficulties such as system and culture for social organization to handle and adapt in. Since opening up, the economic and social development have gained substantial result in cross-border minority concentrated region, and the level of life of cross-border ethnic groups also improved significantly. However, there are a series of issues in cross-border minority concentrated region such as poverty, environment deterioration, ethnic conflicts, religious issue, border security, educational issue, population issue and so on. These issues result in the relative low modernization, and the complexity of various issues. So the central government should promote the western development significantly, fully respect, utilize and development the emotional ties and greatly improve the development of economic and social culture in cross-border minority concentrated region, so as to strengthen the force and influence of social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region.

3.2. The characteristics of social organizations in Yunnan
The social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region have diversity, but they must be suitable to the development of modernization in China, which also become the necessity of develop the social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region. However, the social organizations in Yunnan have some unique characteristics which are deferent from others in southeastern areas of China.

Firstly, the development of the social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region is limited by the socialist democracy of ethnic villages. Due to the complex historical process, diversity of traditional culture, relative low level of economic development, natural environment and social environment, the socialist democracy of ethnic villages has its own unique characteristics such as imperfect power supervisee, management functions, social service and so on.

Secondly, the low level of civil society will also influence the development of social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region. The consciousness of citizenship which is the fundamental foundation for the development of social organizations is related with the citizenship awareness and historical culture. However, as a relative low region in China, Yunnan province with undeveloped economy and culture and slow process of citizenship awareness is not compete with the historical and awareness conditions.

Thirdly, the negative aspects of diversified culture will influence the development of the social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region. Historically, various cultures communicate and form the unrecorded traditions of a people, namely Chinese culture. But there are some negative aspects in the ethnic culture such as conserved mind, enclosing mind, sense of inferiority, satisfied awareness, and regional identity and so on. These negative aspects of ethnic culture have influence the development of the social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region.

Lastly, there are substantial grass-root social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region, especially in Yunnan. As a multi-ethnic, multi-culture province, there are lots of non-governmental organizations which are not registered in governmental departments. These grass-root social organizations which originated from ethnic culture and frontier culture have some unique characteristics with historic inheritress and real life. At the same time, the members of these grass-root non-governmental organizations participate in these organizations with strong religion and nationalities. As far as some social organizations in the ethnic villages concerned, the characteristics of religion is very clear and strong during the origin and development of the social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region. Especially some ethnic groups such as Dai, Wa, Jiruo believe in some kinds of religions, so their awareness of participation in politics is very strong.

4. Conclusion

In order to promote the healthy development of the social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region, the author think that all levels of government should adopt some suitable measure to guide and encourage the rational development in the multi-ethnic frontier. Specifically, some measures should be adopted or established in cross-border minority concentrated region.

Firstly, the legal system must be established to guarantee the nice development of the social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region. The central government or local government should establish some changing or compensatory local decrees, autonomous decrees and special decrees, and rules. At the same time, the ethnic autonomous areas should effectively exercise self-government according to the law, local decrees, autonomous decrees and special decrees, and rules, so as to guarantee the rights and benefits of the social organizations.

Secondly, the registration system of social organization should be improved and the purchasing of social organizations’ service should be encouraged. The local government in Yunnan should realize the reform of management system and adopt simple single-registration system.

Thirdly, the local government also should transform their own role during the guidance of social organization. The local government should regard the social organizations as the equal management forces and establish long-term friendly and cooperative partnership and work together to promote the social progress.

Lastly, the local government should strengthen the supervision on the social organizations in cross-border minority concentrated region. The supervision on the social organizations should be promote from the following aspects, such as establishing unity registration system, strong guidance, setting up and improving the evaluation system and check up system.
