The Design Of Situational Teaching Method In English Vocabulary Teaching

WANG Ruiyang
College of Foreign Languages
Nanjing Normal University
Nanjing, Jiangsu Province, 210023 China

Abstract—This study attempts to explore the effectiveness of English vocabulary situational teaching method by observing and analyzing the situation to two classes of English vocabulary teaching comparative experiments. Firstly, this article defined the research purpose, and then describes the research method, and finally focused on the experimental process. Results of this study will play a useful reference for the optimization of English vocabulary teaching.

Keywords- situational teaching method; English vocabulary; teaching design

I. EXPERIMENT DESIGN

Experiment design of this study include the following aspects.

Research questions: The effectiveness and feasibility of situational approach in teaching English vocabulary.

Research hypothesis: In high school English vocabulary teaching, using situational approach is more effective than general vocabulary teaching, students can better accept and grasp vocabulary.

Experimental treatment: Group one: Class 1 is the experimental class. Basically use situational teaching method to teach English vocabulary, that is, the vocabulary is put into different teaching contexts as much as possible. Group two: Class 2 is the comparison class, using conventional vocabulary teaching mode, that is, the preparation is according to the teaching outline, teaching materials, teaching reference. Most are learning a new word list and unit before the start learning of a word.

The dependent variable measured: twice final grade.

Controlled conditions: The same teaching; Unified teaching content and class schedule; Before the start of the experiment; Before the experiment began, two classes final test during a semester scores are pretest; After the end of the experiment, two classes final test results are the posttest.

Experimental design: Unequal control group design.

II. EFFECTIVELY TO IMPLEMENT SITUATIONAL VOCABULARY TEACHING IN LISTENING, SPEAKING, READING AND WRITING

A. Create situations for vocabulary teaching in the teaching of listening

In listening teaching activities, teachers can hollow out investigated vocabulary or word blocks to allow students to fill in the blank, the content can be brief sentence or a paragraph.

For example, Reading A Trip On “The True North” of Unit 5 Canada—“The True North”, Book 3, NSEFC, at the end of reading the first lesson, the teacher can fill in the blank mesh designed listening practice vocabulary.

The design filling in the blank as follows:

1. Canada is a _______ of many cultures and races. (mixture)
2. _____ take a plane, they decided to fly to Vancouver and then take the train west to east across Canada. (Rather than)
3. Earlier that day, when they crossed the Rocky Mountains, they ______ catch sight of some mountain goats and even a grizzly bear and an eagle. (managed to).

The answer in the brackets is an important lesson vocabulary through listening exercises, getting practice to enhance memory.

An extracurricular reading about introducing U.S. and Chinese articles, after students read the text, teachers can design follows chunks dictation practice according to the article.

Hearing fragment 1:

We have one of ______ in the world protecting the rights of everyone in our country, and many people come to see our famous statue which represents ______. But our country still isn’t perfect and we do have a lot of crime like many other places in the world today.

Listening fragment 2:

_____ the population of many country is so large ---we are one of the largest countries in the world! ______ more than 5000 years and tourists ______ see sights through the country.

(Reference answer: 1: the most famous constitutions 2: our history goes back 3: freedom and liberty 4: It’s not surprising that 5: are always thrilled to)
There are are numerous vocabulary situational teaching methods in English listening teaching, for example, let the students conduct note-taking in the hearing process, and it is an abstract vocabulary and reinforcing process; teachers may allow students to use some key vocabulary or writing after repeated listening activities, so they let the students practice vocabulary deeply to master the lesson.

B. Create situations for vocabulary teaching in the teaching of speaking

In the classroom import, teachers can create teaching vocabulary to speaking situations. For example, in Reading Satisfaction Guaranteed of Book 7, teachers import situational vocabulary teaching: in the following ways: Teachers. Importing a JJ pop "NO. 89757" about robots, in which the lyrics are translated as follows: "I will finish the house-cleaning in 10 minutes. I will ____ (accompany) you, when you are alone. Generally speaking, accompany is a new word, teachers can also give the phrase "keep accompany with". Then the teacher let the students discuss and give sentence: "Oh, my god! It's ____ to have a robot like this falling in love with me. Students will be able to associate the phases and words: terrible/embarrassing-awful; ridiculous/unreasonable-absurd; or disturbing/frightening-alarming. In this way, students will be able to think of many adjectives to describe. Teachers then took the opportunity to summarize some of the synonyms.

Then, in the post-reading section. Teachers can also create such a speaking situation:

Let's make a phone call! A call from Gladys. (A: Gladys; B: Clarie)

A: Hello, Clarie. It's Gladys. Thank you for the party last night. It's amazing.

Especially Tony. Well, er, are you having an affair?

B: No, no! Tony is only a ____.

A: Oh, my god! It's ____! Do you like him at the first sight?

B: Not exactly! At the beginning _______.

A: All in all, are you satisfied with "it"?

B: _______.

Through this scenario drills, students not only consolidate some vocabulary but also grasp the main idea to achieve the effect of active outputs. Of course, there are many other speaking teaching, vocabulary teaching methods to create situations, for example, to build the Semantic Web by brainstorming activities: When said part of the body, we can spread the word about some of the body parts; or give the same Chinese word can find out a lot about this English expression meaning; Through a large series of the word first and the end, for example, greenhouse-housework-workday-time-table-timetable-tabletennis; Teachers can give students to retell some keywords or give some words for students to make up stories; may also allow students to apply what they have learned term or just learn to do interpreting practice. Among these, teachers should pay attention to the selected sentence should be practical, as close to life, with a sense of the times, so that students can be off now. For example, potential, for students to translate the word: In China, the Ministry of Education has encouraged schools to provide quality education to tap students' potential. "hit" is a relatively large number of word usage, ask students to discuss "hawking fever" hits China" or "Tennis princess is a big hit in China" and other interested topic. Sort of vocabulary teaching methods can be carried out in speaking drills activities. This can enable the communicative activities in the classroom, active classroom atmosphere, while allowing vocabulary teaching with authenticity and practical significance, the most important thing is to allow students to become interested in learning vocabulary and the effect is obvious.

C. Create situations for vocabulary teaching in the teaching of reading

In skimming part, teachers can allow students to do the vocabulary fill in the blank, and point out new vocabulary to grasp the effect of the article.

The text is mainly about how a ____ (household) robot was ____ (tested out) in a family.

Words in brackets as a new term, students through such an answer can deepen the impression of the word, and it is much more effective than the teachers tell students the meaning of the word. Then, in perusing this article, some teachers may create situations:

Question: How did Clarie feel about Tony? Why?

Teacher can then set questions from the students' answer.

At the beginning:

alarmed/ alarming

(Teacher can expand the vocabulary: I feel alarmed./ It is alarming)

embarrassed/ embarrassing

(Teacher can expand the vocabulary: I feel embarrassed./ It is embarrassing)

disturbing/ disturbed

(Teacher can expand the vocabulary: I feel disturbed./ It is disturbing)

before the party: frightened/ frightening

(Teacher can expand the vocabulary: I feel frightened./ It is frightening)

amazed/ amazing

(Teacher can expand the vocabulary: I feel amazed./ It is amazing)

In the teaching of reading, there are a lot of vocabulary teaching situation. As in understanding the meaning of a new word or phrase, the teacher can show a different sense of the word in different sentences, allow students to choose the same meaning as in the text containing the word meaning sentence. In this way, they can understand the words but also the other meaning of this term. To expand. Try presented in the context of vocabulary, learn vocabulary in context, and allow students to learn how to learn vocabulary in context.

D. Create situations for vocabulary teaching in the teaching of writing

Here we are not referring to mechanically copying the text or phrase, but do some sentences translated around vocabulary or read texts and materials, according to the keywords provided by the abbreviation, rewritten or combine text articles exported a topic for students to consolidate vocabulary in practice writing, in writing exercises, teachers can remind students to pay attention to some transitional vocabulary used in the pre-write, such as "first of all, then, next, finally", "on one hand, on the other hand", "It is widely believed that...", "in fact", "on the contrary", "in my opinion". In writing exercises, teachers can remind students to pay attention to some transitional vocabulary used in the pre-write, or for the same thing, teachers can allow students to use different words to express, usually teachers can train students guessing words skills in the teaching process and guessing the meaning of the word is actually put words on the specific context to understand.

III. CONCLUSION

Vocabulary teaching is a very important part in English teaching, in the vocabulary teaching, using situational teaching method can mobilize the enthusiasm of students to learn vocabulary, so that students master consolidate and expand vocabulary, only use many ways to improve the ability of students to use vocabulary and level, we can make the student a reasonable and accurate using what they have learned vocabulary, simultaneously to conduct listening, speaking, reading, writing and other activities, verbal communication can be better achieved.

INTRODUCTION OF AUTHORS

Wang Ruiyang, female, Han, born in March 1992, master reading, research direction: English Language and Literature and American Literature

REFERENCES