Network Gives Bad Impact on the Ideological Ideas of College Students. First of all, the network for the Western developed capitalist countries, cultural infiltration and ideological erosion provides favorable conditions. The network has two very important features, one is open and the other is resource sharing. We should see that the network information is a set of useful information and harmful information, real information and false information in one, is beyond control cannot filter, Western developed capitalist countries is the use of this uncontrollable and cannot filter, by virtue of its financial and technical advantages, the use of information monopoly position, control the information content of the network, the socialist countries launched a "peaceful evolution." Second, the network of information on the ideological and physical and mental health students have misleading and negative impact. In the past, college students contact with outside information mainly through books, newspapers, news media and other means. Information through layers of screening to show the public is conducive to leading students from the positive to form a correct world outlook, outlook on life, values. As mentioned earlier, the network set of useful information and harmful information, real information and false information in one, is unable to control cannot filter. These spammers are uninterrupted in the spread of college students, no doubt the ideological point of view of college students have a great misleading effect.

Network Has A Negative Impact on College Students' Interpersonal and Mental Health. The virtuality of the network makes everyone be an "invisible man" in the way of communication in the network. In other words, in the network, the interaction between people is not face to face, real interaction, but through a "interpersonal" conversion of virtual contacts. People face every day is a computer, long past, is bound to affect and change people's way of communication, living habits, resulting in barriers between people. The main realization of the more and more indifferent between people, the relationship between more and more shaky, the ability to communicate between people decline, resulting in loneliness, depression, depressed, depressed will depression and so on. If college students rely too much on the network will cause personality depressed, selfish cold, in interpersonal relationship ability decline, they encounter difficulties in real life tend to seek network comfort, escape reality, from reality. Long-term, will seriously affect their learning and life.

In the traditional ideological and political education, educators have a high prestige and information superiority in the education process often dominate therefore, the implementation of the knowledge of one-way indoctrination. However, in the network environment, the process of knowledge transmission and content are equal, even in some cases, the educators have much more information than educators. In this case, the authoritative authority of the educator will be affected and affected. "In fact, this non-central network of features is conducive to the exchange of equal communication and interaction, to enable educators to use more heuristic, interactive, discussion of the working methods, a more clear understanding of student thinking to take a targeted way to be guided by the traditional single exchange in the one-man play or even unyielding heart really do two-way interaction, oral heart more clothes.
