The new Chinese style is relative to the Chinese style, Chinese style also called Chinese traditional palace style, with the features of magnificent and elegant, splendid and sumptuous, shape symmetry, color contrast and so on, and the new Chinese style was born in the new period of China traditional cultural renaissance. With the development of our economic society, the national consciousness of Chinese people has gradually become prominent, and new thinking concepts and development ideas have been sought from the original “imitate and copy” western style. At the beginning of the searching local consciousness of Chinese design style, especially the designers of tea ware, gradually formed and developed the new style of mature, implicit and graceful. The new Chinese style is not the full sense of the ancient Ming and Qing Dynasty, but through the characteristics of Chinese style to express pursue of the elegant implicit, dignified decent mental realm.

The new Chinese style has two basic elements: first is the China traditional style reinterpretation of cultural significance in the context of the current era; second is the contemporary design on the basis of the full understanding of Chinese contemporary culture [1]. The new Chinese style is not a simple copy and a stack of traditional elements of traditional culture, but through the re understanding and reinterpretation, then reflect the cultural spirit and achieve sublimation, combining modern elements and traditional elements in contemporary aesthetic needs to build things full of traditional charm, make the traditional art form and get the right spirit in today's society.

III. INTERPRETATION OF THE NEW CHINESE STYLE TEA WARE

In the beginning, people drank tea by using eating utensils. The common characteristics of all kinds of wares in ancient Chinese society are various appliances and multiple uses. When the development of tea drinking to a certain stage, people feel the need for a special device, then specialized tea sets appeared. First Century BC, Sichuan Wangbao said in his book “Tong Yue”: “buy tea in Wuyang” “use ware to make tea” or something like that, indicating that tea making has special utensils, tea wares began to produce [2]. While the “the Sage of Tea” Lu Yu said in “ the Classic of Tea”, wind furnace, bowls, napkins, columns, baskets and other 24 kinds of tea wares were designed then. Thus, the ancient tea drinking is not only a requirement of physical activity, but also spiritual needs of the arts, in the appliance of material and spiritual activities, wares play an important role. People use tea wares, not only to the pursuit of its useful and helpful, but also pursuit its vivid and lively, proper and logical, aesthetic as well. At present, with the development of economic society, people also gradually improve the aesthetic demand of tea ware, and more and more new Chinese style has integrated into the design and use of tea set and tea ware, showing a strong trend of “new Chinese style”.

The new Chinese style tea ware, is based on the unscramble and reconstruction of Chinese traditional cultural meaning, with an artistic concept of different styles of mixed material collocation and symmetric contrast, combining modern elements and traditional elements, making the tea ware with modern beauty and classic charm. This is the thousand years China history of the development of tea culture in the accumulation of the spirit in the contemporary art of sublimation and charm, makes the traditional Chinese culture presented suitable material form and artistic spirit embodied in modern society.

The popular of new Chinese tea ware, is the rise of the depressed Chinese national spirit, and is also the self acceptance and enhance to the self-confidence of the Chinese nation. Chinese people are willing to show their historical heritage and national cultural heritage in a national way. 5000 years of China's history breeds the brilliant cultural civilization, but as the Opium War begins, the history of the Chinese people is deeply humiliated, and the Chinese people have a strong sense of inferiority. This psychology has paved the way for the anti tradition later on. The accumulation of the long-term inferiority, when people get independence, it is an urgent to change the status quo of spiritual demand; industrialization and modernization become a counterculture revolution. Until the reform and opening up thirty years later, China, which full of materials, began to re-examine the civilization for thousands of years, only to recall the national culture information, to reflect the charm of elements of traditional culture in the process of industrialization, this is a great enhance to national self-confidence, and is shining the youth of Chinese traditional culture.

For example, the tea cup we often use, the most basic type is a circular cup, which is the exact symmetry of the three-dimensional axis, one of the purple clay teapots there is one called ruyi teapot which is also exact symmetry of the three-dimensional axis. The shape feature of the purple clay square teapot is boxy, it is the three-dimensional symmetric of the solid axis. The song pot made by Purple clay craft master Wang Yinxiang, flying crank and meaningful spout forms two concentric inversion symmetry beauty in three-dimensional space, her musical euphemistic elegant lines showed Chinese culture's "combine square and round" attitude towards life; also with this kind of harmonious attitude towards life made the Chinese nation still full of vigor after experienced countless disasters. The ancients believed that: everything is consisted of five elements gold, wood, water, fire and earth, and that is the five elements. Chinese ancient philosophers illustrate the formation of the world and their relationship with the five elements theory, it emphasizes the overall concept and the dao process rule, the aim is to describe the motion forms of object and the relationship between form and transformation. The theory of five elements belong to the Chinese ancient natural philosophy, but in the process of its development, is widely applied to China social system, ideology and culture, aesthetics and art language and other fields, till today, the new Chinese style tea ware also presents the five elements of art aesthetics.

The beauty of five elements not only reflected in the use of gold, wood, water, fire and soil these five elements in the process of design and produce the new Chinese style tea ware, but also the spirit of the five elements shown in the new Chinese style design and production of tea ware. As one of the five famous kilns, Ru Kiln, though still use clay as the raw material, finished products have natural law beauty through the "generation among five elements". The fusion of soil and glazes on behalf of the fusion of "soil" and "water", the process of high temperature kiln is the aesthetic evolution from "wood" evolved into "fire", finally when people drinking tea, hacking is formed, this is the forming beauty of "golden silk". "The generation of five elements", this art aesthetics was successfully presented in the process of Ru Kiln's making, firing and using.
