Therefore, a widespread attention has been paid from local to national to the protection of the intangible cultural heritage. However, compared to countries such as Japan and Britain, the legal provisions in China developed much more lately. There are still many work need to be perfection. In terms of legal policy, it must really let the legal provisions to encourage right protection behavior, and restricts behavior of damage or potential damage to the intangible cultural heritage.

III. STATUS OF CHINESE SPORTS INTANGIBLE CULTURAL HERITAGE PROTECTION

Sports are an important part of China’s traditional culture. Chinese folk-custom sports, folk sports and national sports not only have various forms activities, but also rich in culture, having an important impact on people’s production and daily life for thousands of years. There are a total of 58 excellent traditional sports included in three batch of national intangible cultural heritage list announced by the State Council from 2006 to 2011, such as Shaolin Kungfu, Taijiquan, Cuju, Hua Tuo Wuqinxi. Besides this, according to initial statistics, China has more than 800 items of sports intangible cultural heritage, adding some sports items included in the traditional dance and folk-custom, and the province/municipality level intangible cultural heritage directory released by each provinces & municipality directly under the Central Government, not including the municipal and county - level intangible cultural heritage items.

The State General Administration of sports points out in opinions about strengthen sports cultural construction that mining and protection of sports cultural heritage should be strengthened in 2011. It also indicated that qualified area should actively promote declaration of sports intangible cultural heritage. Collection, collation, preservation and utilization work of sports cultural relics, archives, sports literature should be paid attention to and carried out.

However, with the development of globalization, the rapid development of economy, the rapid social change, the intrusion of cultural hegemony and the influence of current urbanization transformation implementation factors, China’s sports intangible cultural heritage is facing the grim situation of accelerated demise. The unique characteristics of sports intangible cultural heritage, such as intangible, perishable and oral teaching, format this situation as well.

Besides the common characteristics of intangible cultural heritage protection work, there are special problems in our country’s sports protection of intangible cultural heritage. The following shows main research problems existed in the workplace of sports intangible cultural heritage protection at present.

A. Type of Ownership

China’s sports intangible cultural heritage has problems on type of ownership, just like unclear category, indistinct concept definition and disunion use of name. Traditional sports items belong to acrobatics in the first batch of national list in 2006; and to acrobatics & sports in second & third batch of list and the expand directory in 2008 and 2011. From the classified name change, it can be seen that the state gradually improved awareness and conservation efforts towards sports intangible cultural heritage, nevertheless, the definition of the concept of sports intangible cultural heritage has yet been in suspense. Sports intangible cultural heritage includes national sports, folk-custom sports and folk sports, which combine multiple functions of entertainment, season’s celebration, religious worship and fitness together. It shows that it is very hard to define sports intangible cultural heritage. Is it athletics, acrobatics, traditional dances or folk-custom activity? The uncertainty concept and classification makes overflow using of all kinds of names but not unified, leading to confusion and uncertainty, causing a lot of inconvenience for researchers.

B. Insufficient Funds

Lack of funds hinders the smooth protection work of China’s development of intangible cultural heritage, which mainly reflected in two aspects. First is the shortage of investigation and census funds. Sports intangible cultural heritage census work involves a wide range and large workload, needing a lot of manpower support. Due to insufficient funds, it is difficult to guarantee the truthiness of research data and the integrity of the census work when carrying out large-scale research work. Second limits many experts and scholars do related research work because of not enough funding, affecting their enthusiasm. These factors directly affect the reliability of the census data and the continuity of the protection work. The limited funds made many valuable items cannot be further investigated. Third are not enough funds to meet the living needs of inheritance. Inadequate protection and rescue funds affect carrying out normal protection activities, such as granting inheritance’s allowance. It follows that, sufficient money or not, not only affects the census work breadth and depth, but also determines the census form and census data storage method.

C. Defective Laws & Regulations

The equations are an exception to the prescribed specifications of this template. You will need to determine whether or not your equation should be typed using either the Times New Roman or the Symbol font (please no other font). To create multileveled equations, it may be necessary to treat the equation as a graphic and insert it into the text after your paper is styled.

The legislation of China’s protection of sports intangible cultural heritage is scattered, and lack of special law to support it, that is to say that lawlessness phenomenon is widespread[2]. A complete system of laws and regulations has not yet formed till now. So far, China has not yet had laws and regulations effectively protect national traditional sports intangible. Only in the Sports Law of the People’s Republic of China simply mentions that “state encourages, supports excavation, consolidation and improvement of folk, folk traditional sports items”. However, those 20 words is still far from enough to satisfy the protection work of rich traditional sports intangible cultural heritage which formed in five thousand years.

D. Protection of Inheritance

Inheritance is the successor and initiator of sports intangible cultural heritage their understanding of their own skills and teaching ability directly affect the quantity of sports intangible cultural heritage and the quality of the audience[3]. At present, problems faced in our country’s sports intangible cultural heritage inheritance are too few in number but aging, and fault of them etc.. Young people are not interested in learning the traditional skills, and not willing to inherit the culture. All mentioned above results in a lot of sports intangible cultural heritage is not timely rescued and protected, leading to the danger of extinction.

E. Unclear of the Relationship between Protection and Development

Sports intangible cultural heritage has certain features like ornamental and entertainment, so it has certain economic value, which drives the development of tourist industry and entertainment industry. But because of this, some local governments over pursuit of its economic benefits while downplay the cultural values, ignoring the inheritance and promotion of cultural connotation, which are also the common problems existed in sports intangible cultural heritage protection work. The local government has two hot two cold phenomenon in the protection process, i.e., taking been reported seriously but despising census, and also thinking highly of benefit but setting down of protection. The local government should correctly understand and treat the relationship between protection and development, attaching more importance to protection of the rich foundation of sports intangible cultural heritage. The essence of the culture should be kept at the same time, while in use of sports intangible cultural heritage for the legitimate interests.

In a word, it is a feasible and recommendation form to promote and inherit traditional sports culture through school physical education.

Especially in local sports colleges and universities, a large input should be thrown to national traditional sports major. It should focus on developing staff and coaches, athletes and other senior specialized talents with a higher level of professional quality and professional skills of sports intangible cultural heritage protection, so that sports intangible cultural heritage will be promoted from local to nation, and finally to the world, becoming one of people’s beloved sport from different nationalities, different countries, different languages and different cultural background.

With the rapid development of computer network technology, mankind has entered the information society, and the way of people getting information has changed tremendously. Because of its unique advantages in the preservation and dissemination, digital technology has been widely used in cultural heritage preservation and display, becoming an important channel for the protection of intangible cultural heritage.
